Antonio Padoa-Schioppa
Emeritus Professor at the University of Milan, APS taught History of Medieval and Modern Law, and worked on the Constitution of the European Union.
Recent publications include: A History of Law in Europe: From the Early Middle Ages to the Twentieth Century, Bologna 2016 (English edition: 2017); Verso la federazione europea? Tappe e svolte di un lungo cammino, Bologna 2014.

The European Union is like an unfinished cathedral. In this Conversation with a Young Voter we explain just what is at stake for the future of Italy, Europe and beyond, with the European elections in 2019. We need to be aware just how much of our future depends on the choices that will be made by the Member States and the EU. Young people, who are mostly in favour of a European vision of the future, must take up the call to play their part, as their role may well be decisive.

Antonio Padoa-Schioppa

Why Europe? Conversation with a young voter

Antonio Padoa-Schioppa

Why Europe?

Conversation with a Young Voter in the European Elections

It is not easy to understand what the European Union is and what it may become. It is a complex, multi-faceted edifice, the result of the recent and past history of Europe, with all its lights and shadows, tragedies and successes. This Conversation aims to shine a light on many aspects of the European creation and to explain some of the multiple connections between them.
The book is available to download in English as a free PDF from www.euwiki.it